

INTERDISCIPLINARY MIGRATION WORKING GROUP

TUESDAY, OCTOBER 23

12 - 1 PM

PSTC SEMINAR ROOM

MENCOFF HALL

68 WATERMAN STREET

Jerome Marston, PSTC Predoctoral Trainee in Political Science “Flight in and from Cities: Displacement due to Criminal Violence in Medellín, Colombia, and across Latin America”

Forced displacement in and from cities due to organized crime violence has beset much of Latin America over the past decade. Several questions remain underexplored, however, such as: Who flees in and from cities? What triggers such flight? And, after fleeing, what are these people’s lives like?

The Interdisciplinary Migration Working Group is a space for faculty and students across Brown's campus whose work examines issues of international and internal migration to gather, share work, and build research partnerships.

Sponsors:

Kevin Escudero, Assistant Professor of American Studies

Andrea Flores, Assistant Professor of Education

Zhenchao Qian, Professor of Sociology

Nicole Kreisberg, Graduate Student, Sociology

Contact: Nicole Kreisberg, Nicole_Kreisberg@brown.edu

or Zhenchao Qian, Zhenchao_Qian@brown.edu