

Watson Course Development Funds

The Watson Institute Diversity and Inclusion Committee invites Watson-affiliated faculty looking to revise or create courses that represent diverse scholars, issues of structural inequality, racial disparities, and/or systems of power, to apply for a course development award.

ELIGIBILITY

All members of the Watson Institute faculty.

THE AWARD

The Institute is offering five awards per semester up to $1,500 each to hire a Student Research Assistant (undergraduate or graduate) to support efforts around updating or creating curriculum that better represents diverse scholars, issues of structural inequality, racial disparities, and/or systems of power.

Faculty recipients will be asked to present a short update on the project with their student research assistant at the end of the semester.

APPLICATION PROCESS

Applicants must complete a short application form to be fully considered. Applications will be reviewed and approved by the Watson Institute Director, Academic Director, and Diversity and Inclusion Committee Chairs.

DEADLINE

Applications are accepted on a rolling basis.

Questions? Please contact Kathryn Dunkelman.