MAJOR PROJECTS UNDERWAY

Bootstrapping Transnational Community Development: Dominican Hometown Associations and their Boundless Pursuit of Projects. Book manuscript under production

Roundtable for a New Economy. Research and engaged practice effort led by the Center for a New Economy (in collaboration with the Columbia University, Brookings Institution and the Watson Institute at Brown University) aimed at identifying and advancing a series of development strategies to restructure Puerto Rico's outdated industrial policy. Individual donors in Puerto Rico and the Open Societies Foundation are the project's primary funders.

Puerto Rico Self-Sufficiency Project. Pilot study that aims to incentivize low-income households to engage in work activities and achieve self-sufficiency. The project will employ a randomized-control-trial methodology to evaluate whether reforms to Puerto Rico's Temporary Assistance to Needy Families (TANF), focused on providing earning supplements and job coaching services, can simultaneously reduce poverty and encourage steady work in the formal sector. (with Gustavo J. Bobonis, Frederico Finan and Marco González-Navarro). The Government of Puerto Rico and two Puerto Rico-based non-profit entities (Espacios Abiertos and the Center for a New Economy) are funding the project.
